PERME plan

THE TOP secret PERME site at Waltham Abbey will not be commercially developed when the Ministry of Defence pull out in the near future.

For Epping Forest District Council have declared the site, off Abbey View, a conservation area to preserve it for the people of Waltham Abbey.

The news was broken to the executive committee of the Waltham Abbey branch of the Conservative Association by Cr. Harry Taylor, who said that it was hoped the site would eventually be bought either by the district council or by Essex County Council.

'But ruthless criminals expect vigorous interrogation

SKILFUL and ruthless criminals could only expect "vigorous" interrogation at the hands of the police, an Appeal Court judge said on Friday.

But the treatment afforded to a suspect in a series of ammonia attacks on security guards after his arrest by robbery squad officers was such that it would be quite unsafe to say that his will was not "overborne."

sitting with Lord Justice May and Mr. Justice Hollings, was commenting in giving the Appeal Court's reasons for clearing car dealer Mr. Daniel Gowan last October.

Mr. Gowan, aged 52, of Clarendon Road, Cheshunt, jailed for 25 years at the Old Bailey in July 1979, for robbery and conspiracy to rob after being implicated by a "supergrass," then had his convictions quashed and sentence set aside and was freed.

Lord Justice O'Connor said the case highlighted the difficulties faced by the police and courts in dealing with skilful and ruthless criminals.

A special robbery squad was formed after a series of attacks on security guards in 1977 in Kent, Hertfordshire, Nottingham and Birmingham, and a planned raid at the Schweppes factory in Colindale.

Mr. Gowan was arrested in a dawn raid at his home on November 8, 1977, and taken to Barnet Police Station.

But he was not told the reason for his arrest, in contravention of Judges' Rules, and his detention there until November 15 virtually amounted to him being held incommunicado to make him crack, said the judge.

He was denied access to his lawyers and repeatedly interrogated. He had no food, having apparently gone on hunger strike.

Police alleged he made his first admission on November 10 but he was never charged immediately and was not before a court as should have happened, said the judge.

He was also falsely told that another suspect was talking. It was urged that Gowan's treatment was oppressive or, at least, added Lord Justice O'Connor.

"Serious and experienced criminals must and do expect that their interrogation by hands of trained officers will be vigorous," the judge went on.

Austrian holiday

A COUPLE who met at an 18th birthday party were married at St. John's Church, Clay Hill.

Mr. Malcolm Teague, of Trinity Lane, Waltham Cross, married Miss Linda Giles, of Tynemouth Drive, Enfield.

The matron of honour was the bride's sister Susan Charge, a bridesmaid was Lisa, a friend of the couple, and the groom's man was Mr. Malcolm Teague.

The couple are on their honeymoon in Austria and will live in Turnham Green.

So you didn't think you could run to a Volkswagen.

People often get the wrong impression about Volkswagens.

They think such tough, reliable cars must be rather expensive.

But take a look at the price list and you'll find they're very much mistaken.

Better still, come along for a test drive, and see for yourself what your money can buy.

Sanctions three

TEACHERS will use union sanctions more and more in the 1980s, according to a prominent member of a teachers' organisation.

The national executive member for Essex and Suffolk, Mr. D. Gwynn Jones, said at a recent meeting of the National Association of Schoolmasters and the Union of Women Teachers, that it was inevitable in order to protect not only the interests of their members, but also the standards of education.

It has been a battle for gaining membership for the Essex federation. Gwynn Jones said they have more than doubled their national average, achieved a growth rate of 10 per cent, bringing the total to more than 100 members.
